Fund Review

China and Hong Kong equities were initially quite weak before recovering in the second half of the month, thanks to a recovery in internet platform stocks. The market movements correlated with sentiment around the macro environment. Despite the 2023 GDP growth forecast of "around 5%" set at the National People's Congress that disappointed the market, it is our view that the target is more of a floor as China rarely misses growth forecasts. Overall, the post-Covid economic recovery so far has been mixed. While the services sector has rebounded strongly, more generally consumption appears to be picking up quite slowly. Recently, there has been a notable effort to restore the confidence of corporate leadership including a cut in the reserve ratio requirement (RRR) and new Premier Li Qiang's first press conference focusing on economic growth and acknowledging the private sector's importance to China's economy.

Fund Performance

The fund's net asset value increased 3.34% from last month.
